Live in a landmark.

At the turn of the 20th century, New York City was one of the world's busiest ports; 164 Atlantic is an artifact from that nautical past. Sail lofts, which once accommodated enormous boat masts, are now the spacious homes to select Brooklynites who continue to live a legacy of style and substance. Thanks to modern restoration, each space features original exposed brick, supportive wood beams and cast iron columns, making every home a piece of history.

Red Gravy

Red Gravy is the brainchild of Saul Bolton — the Saul, that is, of, well, Saul, a Michelin-starred delicacy on Smith Street. It's also a down-home neighborhood stop, where the portions are heavy and the vibe is low-key. Opt for the meatballs: a beef, veal, pork combination atop some polenta. If there's more than one of you, we'd suggest a double order.

Barclays Center

You've heard of the Barclays Center: home of the Nets and now the New York Islanders, and perhaps the newest New York concert venue to rival Madison Square Garden. In time, the center itself will likely transform the landscape around it, and for residents of Downtown Brooklyn and Brooklyn Heights, these will be very exciting — and, at times, trying — times.

Colonie

There's always at Colonie, and for good reason: from the cocktails, like the Cool Hand Cuke, to the herb-garden wall, there's something experiential about a meal here. Come with one friend, maybe two, and work your way through a series of courses — they're more assemblages than anything, and a meal here is as much about the process as it is about the taste.
